

Sector Intelligence: Energy

Discover risks. Seize opportunities

Find out how and where your business risks are most concentrated. And discover the potential for investment opportunities. Our Sector Intelligence offers complete coverage of global energy markets.

We understand the challenges you face

- Companies in the energy sector are facing a challenging market outlook. Corporate strategies are shifting towards the low carbon economy, renewable energies are gaining traction, and disruptive technologies are changing the competitive landscape.
- Our solution will help you to formulate the best investment strategy for your business, in a challenging and ever-changing environment.

Never miss a trend, risk or opportunity again

- Our experts have a proven track record in monitoring developments, identifying trends and uncovering the latest business strategies. We analyze the threats and opportunities to help keep you ahead of the curve in your markets.
- In oil and gas, we provide key insight into developments and trends across the upstream, midstream and downstream sectors. This includes production and consumption, fuel and natural gas price movements, major project developments, regulatory updates and key infrastructure.
- Our regular Oil Price Outlook challenges consensus opinion while our unique Global Capex Outlook tracks expenditure across the world's largest oil and gas companies.
- In power, we deliver key analysis for generation, capacity and consumption and track the progress of major projects. We closely follow the disruptive technology shaping the sector and driving M&A, as e-mobility, distributed energy, energy services and smart homes gain traction.
- In renewables, we cover solar, biomass, wind, geothermal and battery technology and storage. We follow the government policies impacting growth and the rise of green financing as climate change targets are adopted.
